RAILROAD HEARING.

The railroad hearing which was called for Monday evening by the selectheights present to protest against the tracks being laid on Lowell street.

Selectman Edwin S. Farmer, chairman of the board, called the meeting to any more roads to Woburn, as it is diffiorder shortly after eight o'clock, and cult to get passage on the electrics now. after reading the petition and advertisement calling for said meeting, said he would hear first from the petitioners for for the road's passengers, to which Mr. the road, secondly from any and all who wished to speak on the subject, and thirdly those who were opposed, after which there was a general discussion and numerous questions asked.

Chairman Farmer called first upon the representative of the petitioners, Col. Woodward, to speak and explain the matter. Mr. Woodward was very brief in his remarks, saying the company proposed to build an up-to-date road and make the fare five cents from Woburn to the terminus at the junction of Lowell street and Mass. avenue.

Mr. H. T. Elder asked where the road would be located providing the petition said the board had the power to accept or reject the petition. Mr. Elder said the matter had been given out and misunderstood at a disadvantage to a majority of Crescent hill property owners, many thinking the road was to pass over Westminster avenue (it is quite evi- with the conditions, there was trouble dent that many signed this petition with poles, and wires with no guard thinking this the way the road was to wires, also trouble with the paving, and run), and presented a petition of pro- finally had to order digging stopped,

Mr. Henry T. Long, a lawyer of fame and a resident of Crescent hill, living many he thought would ride to Woburn on Montague street, was the next to on a five cent fare, to which the colonel take the floor. Mr. Farmer having called said he hoped all would ride. He for the remonstrants to present their further said that Woburn had granted case. He spoke as follows: "I am here the franchise and he believed it would to represent the people of the district build up the town along the route, and already alluded to who are opposed to that it was only 51 miles to Woburn. the road. It is the hearing closed. now a quiet and restful place and pleas- . Since then the petition has been laid ant as a country farm, whereas the cars on the table. would make a noise as loud as a factory and disturb the quietude. Another thing to be considered is that this is the TELEPHONE, 55-4 ARLINGTON, only street in this vicinity to drive on with a spirited horse, all or nearly all the desirable thoroughfares having tracks laid upon them. And another great and important fact is that the Metropolitan Park commission have taken and will use the lake (the old reservoir) for a beautiful park, and it is hoped Lowell street will be taken with it. A road would destroy the prospects for this, and the damage would be more than the good done. Ariington people have to suffer now at the hands of the Lexington & Boston railroad, and often have to wait two or three cars before they can get a seat. At the center it is even worse, where the Winchester road comes in. Another road would be no benefit to the town, but a menace, for people can't wait for more than two cars to get to Boston, and another road wouldonly add to our misery. Property at All orders left with F. K. Daniels will the terminus would not be benefitted, as it would be the means of a large number of lemonade tents going up, and these would be of no benefit to property in this locality. It would be of material benefit to only one or two petitioners who want to get rid of property. I can see no reason where it would be of benefit only to those who wished to have a much shorter way to get a drink, but this elass of people we do not care to entertain. The Lexington & Boston railroad are meeting all the requirements wanted. The route to Woburn > and the Shaws are back of the road. Col. Whipple in Lexington is bitterly opposed to its passing his property. If it is granted several house on the hill will be for sale. The only thing the people can do is to appeal to the railroad commissioners, but this, we hope, will not have to be done, and that the matter will be delayed as long as possible-we hope indefinitly.

Mr, W. B. Farmer: There are only few near the terminus who desire it, but the majority are opposed to making this section a dumping ground of hoodlums from Woburn. The orchards would be interfered with and more police protection would be required.

Mr. W. W. Rawson: Very little more can be said on the subject before the hearing in Lexington. Our selectmen have good judgment and will use discretion in the matter. We don't want

Mr. W. B. Farmer asked if there would be a building erected at the terminus Woodward replied there would be if it was necessary.

Mr. Goodwillie said a great many names had been secured by thinking the road was going through Westminster avenue instead of Lowell street.

Mr. Jones said in talking with some people who had signed the petition he found the matter had been advocated that all Crescent hill was interested and anxious to have the road, when in fact only a small minority were interested and that all but 300 feet of property owners on Lowell street were against it.

Charman Farmer asked Mr. Woodward what benefit he thought it would was granted, to which Mr. Woodward be to the people on Lowell street, to which he said the people wanted to go where the different roads go.

Mr. Farmer said the Mystic street road was never completed by the same people, he understood, who wished to build the road, they never complied perty owners who were in favor of the but now, under new management, it is being properly completed.

"AT HOME."

The above "at home" has by right little or no reference where the man or woman may be in person, the real question being where he or she may be in that mind and soul life which constitutes the only true life. One may be miles removed from his literal work and yet be present all the while in the performance of his and her innividual duty However absurd and contradictory this statement may seem, yet it is true beyond a question. The intellectual life is in no way limited by space. It may go wherever it will, leaving the body to care far itself. So that it has happened naturally enough that during these nearly three months which in a corporeal way we have spent here in the mountains in so delightful a manner, still there has been no day all this while that we have not been at our accustomed place in the Enterprise office, doing our best for these columns.

The success of the Enterprise has been and is our constant study, and by the term "success" we mean not only what is this paper accomplishing for itself, but what as well is it accomplishing for others? Is Arlington and near vicinity in any way helped and bettered by the Enterprise? is a question that we frequently ask ourselves. It isn't a sufficiently good reason that the weekly print should be taken and read, simply that the subscriber has a friendly interest in those connected with the city or suburban paper. The saying, "I take your paper largely for the reason to help you along," is a doubtful compliment to those actively interested therein. The weekly and daily journal should represent such ability and culture and familiarity with current events that both would necessarily come to be regarded as a prime necessity to the community in which they are published. While the Enterprise has invariably been appreciative of and grateful for the patronage that has been given it, vet it has never assumed a begging attitude. It has been and is now the purpose of every man connected with this office to give its patrons not only the full worth of their money, but it has been as well and is now the purpose of every man of us that this paper shall be both the medium of legitimate and healthful news and a unit at least in the business. educational and moral interests of Arl-a factor in all good things that every intelligent man and woman in this locality will say, "I cannot afford to do without the Enterprise." We are quite aware that we have made frequent reference to the object and purpose of this paper, and we have done so and shall be likely to do so in the future, from the fact that in and through these columns is our life work. Our constant aim and desire is that we may come each week to our readers with the best we have to give. We are sparing no time in the needed study of the various subjects we attempt to discuss. We come to our patrons bringing others with us whose genial and intellectual companionship we have gained in the world

Remember that we are always "at home" with the Enterprise, and it is our cordial invitation to all our readers that they shall feel quite as much at home with this paper as we do ourselves. Do not forget what we have so frequently said heretofore, that the Enterprise is yours. Through its columns you may always feel sure of a hearing. Here you may express your own thought in your own way. It doesn't matter whether you agree or disagree with us-you shall ffor have your say all the same. No one connected with this office will ever take the least undue advantage of his position. The readers of the Enterprise, to-gether with our injuddiate public, are our co-partners. With us there is no "behind the soene"-the curtain is always up, so that all man see the per-formers in the rendering of their indi-vidual parts. During our sojourn among the mountains we have come in contact with new of Artington they will be likely to resurroundings and with new phases of turn home feeling a good deal proud of life. We have been reading these weeks that have flown so quickly a new page in nature's book. The Appian that dwell therein.'

In the presence of such an overwhelmwith help and heart for the afflicted time in debating the Westminster cateown work in coming to the aid of an torial, "the streets of Arlington." unfortunate and distressed brother. The longer we live the more are we coming to believe beyond a reasonable doubt that the only religion which saves is that which takes in the whole brotherhood of man without reference to religious creed or forms of religious belief. Helen Gould giving 50,000 rations to Academy street, Jason street, Lake those houseless starving ones in Texas street, and indeed of most of the streets all unconsciously becomes an example in practical christianity. It is what we do and not what we say that is to make his supervision deserve the many good up the final count. That prayer is of the most effect which brings its own answer. We may importune the Lord however much to clothe the naked and feed the poor, and it will all effect nothing unless we give bread to the starving one and clothe those who are shivering with the cruel cold.

It is not only a hopeful sign, as we is the all-satisfying fact that the whole ivilized world is coming together in the unity of that universal spirit which puts us all in touch with one another. The brotherhood of mankind is established whenever there is recognized some common ground upon which all can and must at last stand. This bond of union to which we refer is that chain of misfortune and those hours of deep distress which come to all. No man or woman can escape the cloud. The sun will attimes hide itself, when we involuntarily cry aloud for help, and it is this cry which reaches every heart. In these awful moments of despair there is no Our chief desire in our editorial work delay by the way. We are so much of but add to the interest of these columns. is to make the Enterprise so important an optimist as to believe that the world is growing better. We have not fallen, as we said in our last issue, from our first estate. The world is climbing up instead of rolling down. We believe with Emerson that "every fall is a fall upward." Whenever the crisis comes man is there to meet it as best he can.

In the face of this terrible calamity of which we write, together with the Christ-like help that is going out from every side to alleviate it we pray for pardon if we have ever decried the divine there is in human nature, No, there is no fallen humanity in all God's world. Men and women everywhere in their better moods are in close companiouship with the Infinite. The sharp and unkindly competition of business and social life is but children's play With the softening influences of increasing years we put away childish things, and act the men and women that we are.

Even that darkest of clouds now overshadowing Galveston and her near localities has "a' silver lining," for with that terrible calamity comes the worldreaching opportunity of preaching in an objective way that gospel which Christ preached in his sermon on the mount, and this selfsame sermon the American people are today preaching most effectively, for they are proclaiming from their hearts and from their pockets that charity goes to the rescue and saves to the uttermost when faith and hope at best could do but little.

"In faith and hope the world will disagree. But all a ankind's concern is charity "

WE SHALL BE SATISFIED.

Yes, we shall be more than satisfied if on reaching Arlington we may learn that our letters from White Face have in any way edified and interested our heard it remarked the other day, but it readers. What we have seen and so much enjoyed here among the mountains we have tried as best we could to place within reach of our Arlington friends. Our purpose has been during all this summer long to add a new feature to the Enterprise. We have long desired to bring to this paper in which we with others are so much interested something of the outside world through our own personal contact with it. So we are determined, so long as we' may be connected with the Enterprise, to sit in our office less than we have done, and so mingle more freely with our nearer aud more remote surroundings. Newer and fresher scenes can

. What other people are doing outside of Arlington must always prove an im portant and profitable query. Asa matter of course, the newspaper man must of necessity especially bestir himself in the town and vicinity of the publication of his paper, but he should do more than this. He ought more or less frequently to come into that larger and other world which is more remote from his immediate work. God in his omnipotence has displayed himself in infinite ways; so however much he may have done for Arlington, and he has done much, still he has revealed himself in ways manifold in other localities. And it is something of this infinite variety that we most desire of all to see and feel. And so it shall be our purpose from now on, not only to speak intelligently of Arlington and her varied interests, but to speak as intelligently of whatever we may learn of other localities which shall be of interest and profit to this goodly town of ours.

To help us in this new work proposed we trust that our friends in Arlington and near neighborhood will make an especial effort to hand this office each week anything of home news that may be of importance. By so doing our friends will so aid and strengthen the Enterprise that time will be left us to reach out farther and to gather in more abundant. In order that we may feed others, we ourselves must first be fed It is a sham and a cheat for the editor to approach his readers empiy handed, and he ought not to forget that it is a condition precedent that if he is to say anything through his editorial writings he must first of all have something to So we ask again, give us your help, that we may have time to see and learn for ourselves, remembering that whatever you give will come back to you again. We have no interest that does not center itself in the Enterprise. To make it more worthy of the public confidence and of the patronage of the public is our constant study and the study as well of each one connected with its publication. So, dear readers, join hands with us, then will the constant growth and success of the Arlington Enterprise be doubly assured.

Tomorrow evening, at 7.30 sharp, the famous Fisk University Jubilee Singers, of Nashville, Tenn., will give a sacred concert in the First Parish (Unitarian) church, under the combined auspices of the Unitarian, Universalist and Orthoosite Winter dox churches. These singers need no commendation, for their beautiful rendering of negro music has made them well known everywhere. In such places as Carnegie Music hall, New York, and Trinity church, Boston, they have sung to enormous crowds. There will, of course, be no admission fee tomorrow evening, but a collection will be taken up for the benefit of Fisk university. The public are cordially invited to attend the concert.

> An adjourned meeting of the A. V. F. A. was held in their hall Tuesday evening, the attendance being small. A communication was received from Mr. John Andrews of Woburn, publisher of the Wobujn News, to the effect that he would withdraw his resignation, as the members requested him to remain in the association. The various committees made reports regarding the engine, stating the works would be ready, the woodwork finished and the same set up ready for a playout Saturday. Contributions are coming in, but more is needed, and it is hoped the citizens will give with Capt. Donahue, A. A. Tilden or George H. Peirce. There is to be a meeting tonight after the playout, and a large attendance is desired.

FIRST SOCIAL.

Division 23, A. O. H., held a social dance in their hall Thursday evening, it being a preliminary affair previous to their grand ball, which will come later.

The hall was filled to its capacity, and dancing was indulged in until after midnight. The younger element predominated in the dancing. Cippi's orchestra furnished the music.

Mr. Frank O'Neil ably filled the position as floor director, he being assisted by Messrs. David O'Keefe, Dennis Buckley, David Sliney and Martin Cronin as be taken at all the masses in St. Mala- in this town, died suddenly at his home aids. ton's most prominent musicians, remarked: "Although the violin has always been considered a man's instrument, it is remarkable when you consider the number of girls and young ladies who are taking up the study of it. Where ten years ago hardly one of a upon any instrument but the piano, now a goodly portion of the same number have taken up the violin. And, as in not more so, than the boys and young men. Look at the number of girl orchestras we now hear of, where but a short time ago they were almost, if not entirely, unknown. Perhaps one reason why the violin is gaining such popular favor among the feminine element is the fact that, when played by a girl, the standing posture of the performer gives every opportunity, in addition to the movement required in playing, of displaying her innate grace, and, beyond a doubt, the position is one which shows her to much better advantage than when seated at the piano. The slender, tapering fingers that most girls possess render it comparatively easy for them to master the technical difficulties of the violin, and a number of my girl pupils frequently surprise me with tone effects that I myself, a few years ago, would have hardly thought possible could be produced except by a man performer. The piano is still a favorite with the majority of girls, but the violin is gaining in popularity year by year."

Correspondence, White Face, N. H., Sept. 19, 1900.

Dear Enterprise: It is always with a somewhat hesitant and tremulous voice that we say "goodby" to a host that has for long weeks given us the freedom of his home, and yet, hesitate as we may, we must now bid dear old White Face adieu for this season at least. We say for this season, for we expect to return to the grand old mountains and to this far-stretching Telephone, 155-4 Arlington valley as regularly as the summers succeed each other. It was with no little reluctance that we started out on the 30th day of June from our Arlington home to this, as it seemed to us then, far-away place-twenty-five miles remote from the railroad, six miles from the physician's office, four miles from the post office, and as many miles from the little church of which we have previously written, and from neighbors far apart; and now we as reluctantly leave this far-away and newer world for the 'busy haunts of men." Our Mountainside cottage has become to us our castle of more than eastern selendors, for it has for its covering the clearest and most genial of skies by day and by night the heavens so thickly set with jewels of most brilliant hue.

Not only this, for we have had within literal touch these everlasting mountains which have so kindly looked down upon us and under whose generous shadows we have rested on our way while we meditated upon and wondered at the magnanimous scope of the eternal plan. And then this beautiful, inviting valley has so attracted us by its evervarying charms in such a tender and persuasive way that we leave it only as the youthful lover leaves his first and highest ideal of all that is most beautiful in womanhood. And then these whole-hearted men and women whom we have met, and whose close acquaintanceship we have formed, we greatly dislike to give them the parting hand. They have met us in such an informal and cordial way, and so come into our life that they have given us additional hope and inspiration. We leave with them our "God bless you."

These twelve weeks have been to us a poem of sweetest rhytnm. Nature with her prodigal wealth in this northern country has more than a thousand times over made good all the conveniences we left behind in our suburban life. When one is in touch with the sources of life he little misses the streams flowing therefrom. To get so near to nature that you can hear the throbbings of her great heart is to come into that life that is part and parcel of the infinite life. There can be no one so dead to the myriad voices that we have heard among these mountains who would not exclaim, "a new song has been put into my mouth," and no one so dead who could have looked out and up to this manifold and stupendous work of the omnipotent God without exclaiming, "a new world has opened on my vision." Yes, indeed, there is a new life for all who seek it, so that one only needs to go forth in earnest search for it. But out of this life of infinitely varied charms, we shall be glad to see Arling ton again, a town that has been so true and loyal to us for more than 40 years. Arlington is a good town in which to live. She is hearty in her reception of the stranger or other. Her right hand Speaking of music in general the it given in cheerful aid of every good. other day, Mr. Bendix, one of Arling- Her spirit of manly enterprise commends her to an intelligent business public. Delightful of situation, she makes an ideal home for her resident population. So while we reluctantly say "good by" to White Face, we at the same time give greeting and a handshake to all Arlington.

Birds Take Baths In Ashes.

Naturalists tell us that in making their toilets some birds use water only. some water and dust, while others prefer dust and no water. Birds are not only nice in the choice of bath water, but also very particular about the quality of their toilet dust.

Wild ducks, though feeding by salt water, prefer to bathe in fresh water pools and will fly long distances inland to running brooks and ponds, where they preen and dress their feathers in the early hours of the morning. Sparrows bathe often, both in water and in dust. They are not so particular about the quality of water as about the quality of the dust. The city sparrow must take a water bath where he can get it. Road dust, the driest and finest possible, suits bim best. Partridges prefer dry loam. They like to scratch out the soil from under the grass and fill their feathers with cool earth.

Most birds are fond of ashes. Take a walk some early morning across a field where bonfires have burned and see the numbers of winged creatures that rise suddenly from the ash heaps. A darting form, a small cloud of ashes, and the bathers disappear.

'Twas Only a Dream.

A newspaper reporter dreamed one night that the editor had decided to get out a paper that was entirely satisfactory. Every item that was brought in was carried around to different houses, and if any objections were raised it was "killed." . At 3 p. m. the paper went to press as usual, and when the patrons unfolded it that evening they found nothing but a blank sheet. The editor of the paper slept sweetly that night, realizing that he had printed nothing to offend anybody and that his paper was entirely satisfactory. Thus speaketh the editor of the Warren Mirror.

TO THE FAIR GROUNDS.

AGRICULTURAL PARK, READING AND WAKEFIELD, THE PLACE.

The Date is Sept. 26-29-Colossal Attractions Abound on Every Hand and Every Day there is something New.

A loud call has gone forth from the managers of the Middlesex East Agricultural association to its thousands of oldtime patrons, and the new friends everywhere it may attract, that their annual fair this year will be held on Sept. 26, 27, 28 and 29, and that the place, Agricultural park, half way between Reading and Wakefield, Mass., is easily reached by electrics from all quarters.

hibition building would not nearly provide space for the many departments, and a series of large tents will this year be provided. They will be placed along the sides of the exhibition building, the first containing the poultry and small stock exhibits, the next the bench show, and just beyond and close to the track the automobile exposition.

success last year have already booked entries that will test their capacities to the fullest extent, and this is also true of the quarters for sheep and swine, for which a large interest is assured.

The Exhibition Building.

The exhibition building will, as last year, be under the direction of George H. Sweetser, who with an efficient corps of assistants will assign space, answer questions, and divide himself into a thousand pieces during the four days of the fair, without losing a smile. The first official the exhibitor runs across is Secretary Talbot, at his office to the right of the main entrance on the first floor of the building. What seems like wild confusion on the morning of the first day is really an orderly and systematical booking of the thousands of exhibits, and attention to essential details A distinct feature in the exhibition building will be the floral exhibit, that Superindentent Flanders, President of he Reading Amateur Gardeners' association, has under his direct supervision. The steadily increasing interest in this department has been most encouraging, and with largely increased space and expert management the exhibit this year will surpass any previous effort.

Grand Parade and Track Events Presented Daily. The management of the Middlesex East

Agricultural association have touched a popular chord in their announcement of a Grand Automobile Exposition and Races, as is evident from the large li t of entries already received.

The Exposition will be held in connection with the four days annual Fair of the association at Agricultural Park, Reading and Wakefield, Sept. 26th to 29th, inclusive.

Exhibition of Automobiles-

The management will provide floor space for 60 to 80 motor carriages with power for electric motors furnished free on the grounds.

Competent judges will officiate and diplomas will be awarded for general excellence on these points: Appearance, Simplicity of Operation, Speed. Strength, Utility and low cost.

track Events.

Prizes will be awarded carriage drivers for expert handling of vehicles.
